County Officials' Pressure Reinstates Metro Line Extension to Greenbelt

by Kelly A. J. Powers

It was like the poor child who got the bicycle he wanted but never expected to get. But there it was next to the birthday cake — an unexpected surprise.

That's the feeling much of Greenbelt is having lately about the recent Metro (Washington Metro Area Transit Authority) Board's approval of a plan to move ahead with the Greenbelt Metro line and station and other unbuilt portions of the 101-mile regional Metro-rail system.

The Greenbelt station, expected to be completed in 1992, will be the terminus of the Green Line extension from Ft. Totten. Construction is slated to begin this fiscal year, costing an estimated $450 million. Twenty percent will come from local and 80 percent from federal funds.

The station, which will be located on the Springhill Lake Industrial tract west of Cherrywood Lane, was originally slated for completion in 1979. However, officials are confident that the funding and routing issues that have delayed the start of construction will be resolved soon. The United States Senate and House are expected to approve measures that would pressure the Reagan administration to lift its 76.4-mile limit on Metro by allowing funds previously authorized by Congress to be used. The long-standing alignment problems in College Park also appear to be close to settlement.

"Good Achievement"

The inclusion of the Greenbelt station in the plan, although fervently fought for by County Executive Parris Glendening, among others, was a surprise. "You have to remember that going in to it (talks with the Metro Board) there was nothing planned for Greenbelt," says County Councilman Richard Castaldi. "And then we come out with 60 percent of the remaining Stark-Harris federal construction funds. I wouldn't say it's a victory because Prince Georges is still a small percentage in the overall plan. I would say it's a good achievement." Castaldi, along with former County Attorney Robert Ostrom, represented Prince Georges County on the Metro Board.

Although Castaldi may be cautious in calling it a victory, County Executive Glendening certainly calls it that. "This is a tremendous victory for Prince Georges County, the entire metropolitan area, and all those who support completion of the entire system."

Glendening, who Castaldi says deserves "a hero's welcome," first realized in January the precariousness of the completion of the Greenbelt line when he saw that the Metro Board had no plans to continue the Metro line any further than Ft. Totten. He was also hearing reports that the Reagan administration had strong opposition to approving any more funds for Metro extensions beyond 76.4 miles. Glendening said

Bulletin

In its final hours the United States Congress passed and President Reagan later signed a continuing resolution. The resolution also included Congressman Steny Hoyer's amendment authorizing the completion of the 101-mile adopted regional rapid rail transit. Jerry Gough, Metro's government relations officer for Maryland explained, "This action prevents the Secretary of Transportation from withholding approval of any construction grant based solely on any mileage limitations which is less than the full 101 miles." Gough added "This means the E-Route from Ft. Totten to Greenbelt is locked up."

at that time the Metro Board was displaying a "glaring inequality" in terms of construction percentages among the District of Columbia, Virginia, Montgomery County, and Prince Georges County areas. Only 2.9 percent of the federal Metro funds (Stark-Harris) were being spent in Prince Georges County.

Glendening then said it was imperative that the Metro Board include Prince Georges in any future planning of construction, in order to insure the economic safety of the county. "We must go to the wall on this one," he said.

County Exerts Leverage
Going to the wall meant Glendening's threats to halt all other Metro construction by withholding the county's share of approval for Metro money and refusing to sign agreements with the Metro Board to save any funds that would become unusable in the fall, unless the Board could make an acceptable construction proposal for Greenbelt. "They were close to saying there was no line for Greenbelt. We were at a turning point," said Glendening, who held extensive meetings with Governor Harry Hughes, Congressman Steny Hoyer and other elected and appointed officials to resolve the problem.

With this new situation the Metro Board went back to work and on September 13 came up with an approved construction plan for the promised unbuilt portions of the Metro. Called the Interim Capital Contributions Agreement (ICCA IV), it planned for stations in Greenbelt, Anacostia, Wheaton, Van Dorn, Virginia, and at U Street to be completed.

But the best part of the announcement had to do with the funding—it was already all there for Greenbelt. Ready for spending. The 80 percent would be coming from the remaining Stark-Harris funds, and the 20 percent local match had been provided by Maryland state funds. Dee Allison of the County's Department of Transportation said, "The Prince Georges County share is already paid by Maryland. There seems to be no problem in funding for them."

Secretary Dole Pleased

However, at a recent Transportation Convention in Washington, D.C., Department of Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said that while she was pleased an agreement had been worked out between the jurisdictions and the Metro Board for completing 89.5 miles of the proposed rail system, she stopped short of guaranteeing that the federal funds would be available for the added miles. A decision by the administration is expected after the agreement is ratified by

Opposition Surprises Council When Annexation Is Discussed

by Leta Mach

Hoping to make the city's October 9 public hearing short and sweet on the proposed annexation of 273.9 acres Council member Richard Pilski asked whether any of the two dozen attendees planned to speak in opposition. Council was surprised to hear that one person did so plan.

As Mayor Gil Weidenfeld noted, annexation proceedings began when the residents of Hunting Ridge petitioned to join the city. One reason for the request is that many people have moved into Hunting Ridge believing it is Greenbelt and were disappointed to learn it is not and that they thus cannot receive city services. Residents also want to work with the city in controlling development in the area. The city's Advisory Planning Board has reviewed the request and unanimously recommended city support.

Bednariks were concerned about the effects of annexation on the plans. Greg Adams, broker for the property, asked why Goddard Space Village was not included. The petitioned area and undeveloped property was included, city officials explained.

If council was surprised that opposition surfaced, they were shocked with the intimation that being part of Greenbelt would not be desired by the future residents and would not add to the value of See ANNEXATION, p. 3, col. 2

Fire and Rescue Review

by Billy Rowland

In Memoriam—Bud Zoellner

Members of the Greenbelt Fire Department and Rescue Squad were saddened to learn of the death of Lifetime Member Marshall H. "Bud" Zoellner.

Bud joined the Greenbelt Volunteer Rescue Squad on February 14, 1949, when the organization consisted of only one ambulance, which was housed in a garage in old Greenbelt. Many a night, Bud would awake to the call for help, and would drive the ambulance.

In December 1951, Bud was elected Chief of the Greenbelt Volunteer Rescue Squad, the third Chief of the organization.

In January 1954, Bud proposed a by-laws change that would include a president and vice president for the organization and in March of that same year was elected as the first president of the Rescue Squad.

In February 1955, the Rescue Squad merged with the Volunteer Fire Department and on February 10, 1955 Bud was elected as the first president of the newly combined organization. He was also elected to that office during the years of 1956, 1958, 1960, 1967, and 1968.

During the years he also found the time and energy to serve as State delegate for the Maryland State Volunteer Fireman's Association, was on the Board of Trustees for the Greenbelt Department and was instrumental in the planning of the present firehouse.

We feel very fortunate to have known and served with such a dedicated and talented individual and this department will always benefit from his many past efforts. Peace be with you, Bud.

PANTHERS HOLD JOINT MEETING

Arthur Fleming, former head, U.S. Civil Rights Commission and HEW and other prominent persons will also be on the program.

Transportation will be provided. Carpools and persons needing rides will meet at Greenbelt Suburban Bank at 12:15 p.m. on Saturday, October 20. For information call 474-6890.

Marshall Zoellner

Marshall H. "Bud" Zoellner, age 63, died after a long illness on October 15. A resident of Greenbelt since February, 1938, he is survived by his mother, Mae Zoellner of Green Ridge House. sons: Marshall Scott of Arizona, Kurt of Washington state, and Karl, of the home on Hillside Road. He also leaves daughters, Patricia Lackey of Arizona and Christine Madsen of Utah; sisters June Rousseau of Greenbelt, Helen Geesey of Wyoming, Mildred Hill of Hollywood, Md., and Margaret Stewart of Arkansas, and also surviving him are 9 grandchildren and dear friend, Lillian Brittain.

A mass of Christian burial will be celebrated at 11 a.m. tomorrow, Friday, October 19, at St. Hugh's Church.

The family requests that expressions of sympathy be made to the Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police, Lodge #32 or to the Greenbelt Fire Department and Rescue Squad.

In Memoriam

Lt. Marshall H. "Bud" Zoellner
1921-1984

In the death of Bud Zoellner, the City of Greenbelt has lost a lifetime resident and friend who dedicated his working life to the protection of the citizens of Greenbelt. Bud served Greenbelt as an employee of its Police Department for 27 years, retiring in 1981 with the rank of Lieutenant. He was one of the founders of, and a lifetime member of, the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, and served as its President, and Vice President. He was also Chief and held other line offices of the Rescue Squad. During World War II, Bud served in the U.S. Naval Air Force as a Petty Officer 1st Class in the Atlantic Fleet.

Bud probably knew as much or more about the history of Greenbelt and its residents as any person in the city. His dedication and loyalty to the city and its police and fire departments were well known. Bud virtually left his hospital bed to attend the Police Department Change of Command Ceremony in June of this year.

The city shares with Bud's family and many friends in mourning his death, and in recognition thereof has placed the City Flag at half-mast.

OPEN LETTER

Mr. Michael Snyder
District Engineer
9300 Kenilworth Avenue
Greenbelt, Maryland 20770
Dear Mr. Snyder:

Yesterday a seventy-five year old woman was killed at the intersection of Mandan and Greenbelt Roads in Greenbelt.

The State Highway Administration has promised to erect a traffic signal at that intersection, with expected completion date of February, 1985.

What can be done to expedite the process so that the signal can be in place as soon as possible? How can I help?

Obviously the need is urgent. I look forward to an early reply, and will be glad to discuss this with you personally if you would like.

Leo Green,
State Senator

(Editors Note: The State Highway Administration has advised the City of Greenbelt that the traffic light at Greenbelt Road and Mandan Road is in the engineering stages along with 40 to 50 other signals for District 3 (Prince George's and Montgomery Counties). It is expected that these lights will be advertised for bid in February 1985 and installed soon after.)

GHI NOTES

GHI members are encouraged to attend a membership hearing on the proposed 1985 budget on Tuesday, October 23 at 8 p.m. in city council chambers. The meeting will be televised on public service cable TV channel A-10.

the proposed development. Two 10-story buildings with over 400 luxury-type apartments are planned for the site. Council members pointed out that suggested rents for the units are merely average for Greenbelt. In response to Adams' lament that he could not get this kind of rents now, council member Ed Putens said, "Know why? Because you're not in the City of Greenbelt."

Council found the argument specious that future residents of this tract should be allowed to decide whether they wanted to be a part of Greenbelt. Council member Thomas White pointed out that only property owners, not rental residents, can petition for annexation.

Council recalled that previous property owners were hesitant about annexation but later found it was profitable. "It's possible you could fare better," explained

ARTS CENTER PLAY RESEMBLES SITCOM

by Rema Boscov

If you're looking for a laugh or two, a night out and a chance to show your support for community theatre, Woody Allen's "Don't Drink the Water" playing at the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center might be the right prescription for you.

This Adelphi Community Theatre production won't make your eyes tear with laughter and your mouth ache from grinning. No message will leave you contentedly pondering, but like a comfortable sitcom this not very memorable play will carry you along and let you leave the theater unencumbered.

The ACT has come up with come seasoned and comfortable performers, and some stiff ones too, for the character roles Allen provides. Trapped in a United States embassy behind the iron curtain, Bill Fedorshik and Margie Brennan comfortably handle their roles as tourists Marion (good-natured) and Walter (the kvetch) Hollander. They confront the possibility of a long siege in the surrounded embassy while daughter Susan (the independent), played unconvincingly by Cindy Estep, falls in love with the ambassador's son Axel (the loser), who rapidly loses believability in the too-rapid speech and mannerisms of Helmut Cote.

Beatriz Mayoral deftly portrays a haughty, irate chef, and assistant director Mike Reed playfully rendered a likable priest enthralled with magic tricks.

Other performers in this production directed by Stephanie Boss are: Rolo Nickerson, Dawn LaComb, Jim Evans, Jim Snider, Anne Greene, Chris Dullnig, Tricia Leffson, Bob Waddell, and Susan Hedges. Jim Robertson ordinarily plays the priest.

"Don't Drink the Water" will play weekends throughout the month, 8:15 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center. Call 474-7763 for more information.

Crime Prevention Posters

In recognition of October as Crime Prevention Month, Greenbelt elementary school students will be participating in a Poster Contest for Crime Prevention. Sponsored by the Greenbelt Crime Prevention Committee and the Greenbelt Police Department, the contest will be open to children attending grades 1 through 6 at any of the three Greenbelt Elementary Schools (Greenbelt Center, Springhill Lake and St. Hugh's). Prizes will be awarded to the winning entries. Additional contest information has been provided to each participating school.

The Poster Contest is one of many activities being sponsored by the City to help make people aware that crime prevention does work. The cooperation and participation of the schools in this program is greatly appreciated.

CONSIDERING A CHANGE IN RESIDENCE?

There are three key elements to consider:

- A) Your needs: things you positively have to have.
- B) Your wants: things you'd like to have, but don't necessarily need.
- C) Your qualifications:
 - 1) Your initial investment (cash to move in)
 - 2) Your total income (gross yearly income)
 - 3) Your debt service (total indebtedness)

I would like the opportunity to discuss with you how we can combine these three factors to assist you and your family in achieving your housing goals both within Greenbelt and the metropolitan area - of course with no obligation.

Peace Committee Hosts Program on USSR

Come find out what the Soviets hear and say about Americans, what kind of peace they are looking for. On Tuesday, October 23, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Greenbelt Library, the Greenbelt Peace Committee will host a presentation on the Soviet Union, "Impressions and Conversations: Travelling in the Soviet Union".

Presentations will be made by recent visitors to the Soviet Union—Florence Widutis and Sylvia Eastman. Widutis, a former social studies teacher, will be reporting on a Volga Peace Cruise. Eastman, Russian language student, Director of Institute for Positive Action, and former teacher (who maintained an exchange program with "sister classrooms" in the USSR) will discuss her most recent visit inside the country and suggest some of the changes that have taken place since her first visit 15 years ago.

Coloring Contest for Kids

Coloring forms are now available at Drugfair's checkout and pharmacy registers. The deadline for submitting entries is Monday, October 29. Judging will take place on Tuesday, October 30 at each store. Winners will be notified as soon as possible after judging.

Also included in the agenda will be an update of the Greenbelt-Rezekne Exchange Project. Bring questions and come.

the local governments. There remains 1.7 billion dollars of the Stark-Harris congressionally authorized funds for Metro construction. The balance of the system, about 11.5 miles, is scheduled to open by 1997 and will require additional federal funding beyond Stark-Harris.

Impact on Community

It's an understatement to say that the Greenbelt Metro station will have a tremendous impact on the community — but how much impact is disputable. "We expect for this area to become highly urbanized," said Glendenning.

Castaldi is not so sure. "Greenbelt is already one of the heaviest traveled corridors in the county, what with I-95 and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. This system will relieve a lot of that congestion. And it's going to allow for more transportation freedom for people. They'll have a choice. (But) I think it's too early to tell what kind of real estate changes Greenbelt will have. If you look at Greenbelt now it's one of the hottest properties in the county today."

Gil Weidenfeld, Mayor of Greenbelt, sees a building boom as a result of the Metro station. "Clearly it will be a community development boom to Greenbelt. More office buildings are being built in anticipation of the Green Line coming to Greenbelt."

Metro's inclusion of Greenbelt is clearly as Metro Board Chairman John Milliken says, "Regionalism at its best". Glendenning is pleased with Metro's inclusion because it shows the ability of "our partners in Metro" to "reject the me-first philosophy" and allow for others to share in Metro's beneficial freedom of transportation.
